Each maintains a physical presence in the US, which means they are all subject to state and federal law.

Despite having the support of BetMGM, WynnBET, DraftKings, FanDuel, Bally's Corporation, Penn National Gaming, and Fanatics, the initiative failed by a vote of roughly 83% no and 17% yes.

Third Proposal : Another ballot initiative sought to establish a competitive California sports betting market by allowing tribal casinos, race tracks, cardrooms, and professional teams to apply for licenses to operate retail sportsbooks and mobile betting apps.

The measure failed to collect enough signatures by the statutory deadline and did not appear on the ballot as a result.

A competitive market and player-sharing agreements with other states would better serve poker players.

California is likely to have fewer problems with the geolocation of players due to its sheer size.

After voters resoundingly rejected two sports betting measures in the November 2022 mid-term election, it is unlikely California will see significant progress before 2024.
