Providing Remote Gambling Services As Operator

In the latter case, the offence lies in the provision of the gambling service t o customers who were physically in Singapore at the time the gambling took place

. Later in the same year, the accused started to offer remote gambling services t hrough the &quot;PPPOKER&quot; app.

The Judge noted that online gambling, especially via mobile apps, had changed th e landscape of gambling significantly, due to its ease of use, shelter of user a nonymity, the availability of round-the-clock and immediate access, the convenie nce of cashless payment, the inoperability of gaming exclusion orders, and avail ability to all users regardless of age, maturity or credit worthiness.

There has also been an increase in the promotion of gambling via &quot;spam&quot;

; text messages that advertise gambling sites opportunities for gambling, includ ing loan offerings for gamblers.

It should not be regarded as a comprehensive statement of the law and practice in this area.
