Initial concepts for a hotel development in Barangaroo as part of its urban rede velopment plan first circulated in 2010.

An observation deck on the 66th floor from a height of 250 metres (820 feet) ab ove ground,[13] as well as public access to the upper floors, was also proposed. [23] The main core of the structure topped-out in March 2020,[24][25] followed b y the floorplates which topped out and reached the building's full architect ural height in May 2020.

[26][27] Crown Sydney was officially inaugurated to the public on 28 December 20 20.

Founding architect Chris Wilkinson further describes the design of the tower as " a sculptural form that will rise up on the skyline like an inhabited artw ork, with differing levels of transparency, striking a clear new image against t he sky".

A public observation deck occupies a small section of level 66.

Popular opinion is divided on the design of the tower.

Australian and international media have reported that the building has been nic knamed "Packer's Pecker", in reference to its primary proponent, J ames Packer, and its outsized massing and phallic shape.
