Although exceedingly rare, the bad actor could also be an actual client who is misrepresenting his or her experience with you or your firm. These misrepresentations can take several forms, such as:

The client publishes one review but materially misrepresents whatever the review complains about.

Flag & Report the Review

We strongly recommend consulting an experienced Internet defamation attorney or qualified ethics attorney to determine how to best respond to unwanted or fake reviews.

With the requisite degree of fault, and Thoroughly consider and analyze your reasons for suing before filing a defamation lawsuit. Attorneys normally need not be reminded that litigation is not always in one's best interest, even when the claims are unequivocally meritorious. Individuals who post or solicit false and misleading testimonials can be fined u p to $10,000.
